The winter morning as I write-In the grim city's gloomy light, 'Midst fogs that cheak street, river, and church, And the fast falling flakes besmirch-How pure o'er that fan country side

Must gleam the snow waste drifted wide. In my mind's eye I see it rolled O'er stream-gashed glen and brambly wold. O'er wheat lown slope and climbing lane

And ridge that bounds the battle plain. And orchard, lawn and garden sward-That same white raiment of the Lord ! The church stands on the woodland hill, ..

The pine trees fence the churchyard still; Entward it looks, that home of hers. The robin whistles in her firs. All seems the same; but where is she Whose name is breathed from brake and tree Where lives and soars that noblest one

It raised our life to look upon? .. Shall springtide wake the world again, And summer light the eyes of men? Shall throstles thrill her oaken glade, The primrose star her hazel shade?

This icy mist, these clouds of gray, Will they not all be swept away? And western airs blow kindly through Large lucid skies of tender blue? And shall no vernal dawn await

The hopes by death left desolate?

No shining angel brood above The sepulchre of human love? That brain of strength, that heart of fire, That liquid voice, a living lyre-

Do not these vibrate, throb, and burn Where the lost lights of time return? The aspiration, passion, power, That crowd with fate a mortal hour, Are these crude scenes no bloom may bless,

Beginnings bright of emptiness?

Thoughts on Christmas. From the London Daily Telegraph, Dec. 25, 1861. It is now some eighteen hundred years since the world began to count its united sugar interests of New York, Philadelphia Christmas tides. If chronology had not | and Boston arrived here to-day, and are working blundered we might call the present by like beavers with the members of the Committee its actual numerical; but it is out by to induce them to report favorably on a bill to absome three or four years in the annals dered that letters be sent to the Secretary of State of our Christian era. However, we are and the Secretary of the Treasury, asking their certainly verging fast towards the two thousandth anniversary of the birth of treaty. It is expected that replies from these offi-Christ. Far back in time, but near by cers will afford the Committee abundant means of familiarity seems that epoch, that point | determining the importance of the treaty to this which divides the past into ancient and | country from a political as well as a commercial modern. As long ago as stretched the ages of Assyrian and Egyptian dynasties, twice as long as the rule of Rome—and still the story is as "household" to and still the story is as "household" to rived from a freedom of importation of Hawaiian us as the things which happened yester-day. Who cannot conjure up, at a word, its scenes? Jerusalem; Nazareth; the long file of camels, striding over the dark desert by night, towards that solitary star glittering so suddenly and diameter, with furnace, front doors, etc., with such mystery to beckon these swarthy lords from the Orient hills! Who has not made from all the old and 4 30-inch Weston's Patent Self-balancing Suspended Sugar-Curing Centrifugal Machines, side inn at Bethlehem? The crowding with the requisite Independent Iron pilgrims, the patient cattle, the traffic, Framing. Wrought-Iron Sugar 'Mixer of the dust, the tumult; and in the midst 2,000 gallons capacity, with Stirrer, of all the Christ and His Hebrew mother? And how quietly we receive. on the strength of a story made for all times and peoples, "the adoration of the Wise Men." We never wonder to find these grave and reverend seniors clad in early Italian or mediæval costume, presenting on bended knee-a salutation unknown to the East-jewels and confections of the manufacture of "the streets of the jewellers" at Florence, or the Dom Platz of Cologne. What, if under porticoes which the Romans Notice to Travellers! only built, horses are waiting which the Magi would not ride; and the Madonna smiles upon the wistful travelers in a Greek "peplus," her features and the features of her Divine Child proburied at Aix-la-Chapelle. We listen to the tale like children, who hear an undermeaning in every word of their narrator's story. Beyond and behind it all rator's story. Beyond and behind it all is that eternal revelation, that ineffable only half comprehend. Tell it as ye gether in the stall, and the bird who stained his breast red with chirping on

The Eastern sugar men say that the Pacific slope people thought the millionaire sugar dealer of San Francisco may eclipse them all in horror and in acquired by purchase and rental absolute control evil consequences. spite of some passages which have got to be miswritten in it, its matter is divine, and its manner is commanding. It contains, besides, a prayer that all can pray -a litany not longer than the patience of a sleepy child; it has a word for the Pharisees who judge hurried judgments, and for the Sadducees who deny the resurrection of hope to the hopeless. It will supply a rebuke to the wild avariee of the age, which stumbles over justice and honor in the race to be rich, and does not note how God can clothe the hily and take thought of the falling sparrow. Beyond and above all it is the absolute mission of Him whom the angels proclaim to the herdsmen It is the authentic proclamation which was only then and there announced. It is Christianity: not Dr. Cummings', nor Bishop Wilberforce's, nor the Pope's, nor Father Passaglia's, but simply Christ's. Rightly preached it would cut at the tap root of war, for in the heart of it is the expansion of the chorus of the angelic host, the corollary of peace set down in Saxon words, "I say unto you, forgive your enemies." Such is the sublime maxim which it inculcates. We have never come within real earshot of this doctrine; we are not perhaps on the road to it at all. What if meditating on this and abandoning dry doctrine, our teachers were to try this morality pure and simple? What if polemics are a little disused and ethics a little more adopted during the coming year? At this particular Yule-tide, if any reverend preacher will take a text from his secular brethren, we commend to him, for brand-new and edifying study, that sermon known as the "Sermon on the Mount.
